

Counseling Agencies with an Interagency Agreement on file with BSD

The following mental health & wellness agencies work with children, youth and families. If your student is in need of ongoing counseling services, this is a great place to start. Please note that money and transportation will not stand in the way of your child receiving services. With parental consent, your child could be seen by their agency counselor at school, through special arrangement. In addition, all agencies will provide some type of financial help, to make counseling available to any child in need. For further information, please either reach your child's school counselor, or call the agencies directly.
